

Skill Based Creative Tourism Development for Revitalizing the Identities of Local Communities

Overview

Skill development has received recognition for its being instrumental in building capacities of human resources in their respective fields of performances. The need for skill development is invariably important in primary, secondary and tertiary sectors for building the generative structures for the economic independence. Tourism being a tertiary sector has an important role in reducing the economic differences and promoting community development that is recognised globally at platforms like United Nations. Tourism though has been focused mainly for its positive impacts like economic relevance, yet it gives a lot of adversities that put challenge to the otherwise positive image of tourism. The adversities are not inherent but unfortunately are an outcome of the lack of understanding of the close and symbiotic relationship of the various components which are overlooked.

Cultural tourism is one of the forms of tourism which has been carried with the same myopic approach of fulfilling the short term benefits which eventually have put the very cultural resources either into deterioration or eventually to the loss of identities of the local communities. In this identity loss we therefore loose cultural assets as important tourism resource. However, an advanced version of cultural tourism i.e. creative tourism is a hope for revitalizing the endangered identities. Creative tourism is build on offering experiential learning whereby the economic value is created from the very process of production of the cultural experience.

This course offers an opportunity to connect important intriguing areas namely skill development, creative tourism understanding and capacity building for revitalizing Identities for the overall benefit to human resources professional in tourism sector, to the tourists for enhancing their cultural experiences and to local communities and stakeholders for preserving their identities in the global milieu.
